

Kiley Holbrook
The Ohio State University

Kiley is currently a third-year student at The Ohio State University, where she double majors in Agricultural Communication, and Public Management, Leadership and Policy. She is passionate about advocating for the agriculture industry and producers around the nation. Currently, Kiley also interns for Ohio Corn & Wheat, working in advancing Ohio grains. She will be continuing to grow her skills in agriculture policy this summer in her internship with Congressman Glenn Thompson, Chairman of the United States House Agriculture Committee in Washington D.C. She looks forward to actively participate in the discussion and process of a Farm Bill as a Congressional intern. After college, Kiley will continue her impact in the agriculture industry, working in government relations as an agricultural lobbyist.
